

Former RSAF engineer Rajkumar Padmanthan had business interests in firms that he recommended as contractors, but allegedly kept this secret from the RSAF.

ST PHOTO:
WONG KWAI CHOW

Eagle Flight Aviation Services owner Jeevan Arumugam (right) is accused of being Rajkumar Padmanthan's co-conspirator, while former RSAF engineer Sung Way Xiong faces one charge of corruption.

ST PHOTOS:
WONG KWAI CHOW

Ex-RSAF man charged over $1.8m in deals

Alleged co-conspirator and owner of a firm as well as another ex-RSAF engineer also face rap

Elena Chong
Court Correspondent

A former Republic of Singapore Air Force engineer, who had business interests in companies that he recommended as contractors, kept it secret from the RSAF.

Rajkumar Padmanthan, 48, was yesterday charged with cheating, abetment by conspiracy to cheat, corruption and offences under the Official Secrets Act. He faces a total of 251 charges over $1.8 million in government contracts.

His alleged co-conspirator, Jeevan Arumugam, 46, owner of Eagle Flight Aviation Services (EFAS), is accused of 67 counts of conspiring with him to cheat the Government by dishonestly concealing that Rajkumar had a business interest in EFAS.

Court documents say this happened when Rajkumar recommended EFAS as a contractor for the RSAF aircraft system repair and maintenance works. The Government paid about $633,000 to EFAS.

A third man, former RSAF engineer Sung Way Xiong, 28, faces one charge of corruptly agreeing to accept an unknown amount of money and future employment from Rajkumar as an inducement to provide him with restricted pricing information.

He is also alleged to have communicated confidential information relating to the moving price of material part numbers which he had access to in RSAF to Rajkumar, who was not authorised to have it.

Rajkumar is accused of cheating the Government 126 times when he was with the RSAF, and 24 times when he was employed as a technical officer with One Marina Property.

Between 2010 and 2012, he allegedly cheated the Government, in particular the Defence Ministry, on 99 occasions when he recommended Goodwill Aviations System (GAS), controlled and owned by him, as a contractor. About $869,000 was paid by the Government to GAS for work done.

Another 27 counts state that he deceived the Government by dishonestly concealing, when he recommended Duratech Engineering as a contractor, that the firm would subcontract RSAF aircraft system repair and maintenance works to GAS or EFAS. The alleged offences took place between 2010 and 2013.

Between December 2013 and December 2014, he was with One Marina Property when he allegedly concealed the fact that he had an interest in the businesses of EFAS and Global Trade Well (GTW) when he recommended them as contractors. The Government paid about $57,000 for repair and maintenance works done by EFAS and/or GTW.

Rajkumar said he intends to plead guilty. Jeevan was represented by Mr T.M. Sinnadurai, while Sung intends to get a pro bono lawyer.

All three will be back in court on Aug 14.

elena@sph.com.sg